During the last few years we have examined many new inventions and appliances in this con ection, and have consulted with several thousand mechanics, fully experienced in the use of machinery for the manufacture of lumber. During the last year we have sold and shipped to various parts of this continent nearly one hundred steam mills, the results of which ly one hundred steam mills, the results of which have afforded us a large amount of practical information, as to the difficulties to be overcome, the defects to be guarded against, and the objects to be obtained in machinery of this

It has been thoroughly and practically tested, and has been examined by a large number of well-known scientific and experienced mechanics, whose certificates we shall soon publish, all of whom pronounce it more simple in its construction, more durable and more efficient in its operations than any mill ever before produced. mill ever before produced. .

THE MOTIVE POWER.

The engine and boiler which have been planned and constructed for driving the "Combina-ned and constructed for driving the "Combina-tion Mill," are so compact and substantial and so easily managed that almost every extensive farmer or planter would find them as conve-nient and valuable for the farm or plantation as a span of horses or a yoke of oxen. No one need be deterred from the possessor notive power, by apprehensions of difficulty in running or taking care of it, for it is so sim-plified as to be within the comprehension of any judicious person, who will note the instruc-tions always furnished with it.

The engine is nine feet long, has an eight inch cylinder, eighteen inch stroke, with feed pump attached to and operated by the engine. The driving pully, which also serves for a balance wheel, is five feet in diameter and ten inch

The boiler is of locomotive construction, 10 feet long, containing 44 tubes, 21 inches in diameter. The fire box 36 inches long and 28 inches wide; smoke pipes 18 inches in diameter and 30 feet long.

HOW MUCH IT WILL DO.

The speed of this Mill is about three hun from 7-S to ½ of an inch for every stroke depending upon the character of the timberr.

Thus, at a medium speed the saw would cut through a log 12 feet long in from one to two ninutes. From this data, any practical man can see that it is capable of cutting about 3000 feet of nch boards in 12 hours.

It will saw more rapidly than any mill we have ever seen, while its advantages over the circular mill are, that it is cheaper, requires less power to run it, is much less liable to get out of order, is much less expensive to repair, when damaged, does less imperfect work, wastes loss in cutting, is not dangerous to the parties attending it like the circular mill, and is capable of cutting much larger timber.

The segments and friction wheels we furnish for the carriage are sufficient to saw logs twenty-four feet long. An extra length will be sent when desired, and an extra charge made. The ump sent is worked by the engine, add is sufcient to raise water about twenty feet.
